

Named N.E. Coach of Year

Bjorkman Resigns as UNH Hockey Coach

by John Donovan

Hockey coach Rube Bjorkman said yesterday that he is leaving UNH "to make a direct and meaningful contribution to a well-established youth hockey program in Grand Rapids, Minnesota."

Bjorkman's statement dispelled rumors, circulating in Durham yesterday, that he resigned because he was unhappy at UNH and dissatisfied with financial aid given him for recruiting hockey players.

"The past five years of college coaching have been very enjoyable for me, and I am grateful for the many fine associations I have formed," said

Bjorkman. He also remarked that the UNH hockey program is off to a good start and will remain intact for two seasons.

"First, because the boys are excellent both as players and as gentlemen," said Bjorkman. "And second, because the community, especially the students, take great pride in the team."

"As far as UNH is concerned, I'm convinced that New Hampshire will remain a hockey power. If I thought my leaving would mean the death of UNH hockey, then I wouldn't go."

Rumors at the NCAA championships in Duluth, Minn., had Bjorkman "tired" of college hockey. "I just had to get back home to Minnesota," said Bjorkman. "It is something I have been thinking about for a couple of years. There was nothing wrong with the job at New Hampshire, and I am not looking for a college job elsewhere."

Bjorkman announced his resignation from UNH, effective June 30, 1968, at the New England Sportswriters and Hockey Coaches Luncheon at the Hotel Somerset in Boston, Wednesday night, where he received the "New England Coach of the Year" award.

Bjorkman's fellow New England coaches voted him the Clark Hudder plaque, symbolic of New England's outstanding coach. Boston University's Jack Kelley, last year's recipient, presented Bjorkman with the plaque which is named after a former Harvard hockey coach.

Bjorkman is the first hockey coach in New Hampshire history to receive the Hudder plaque. He is the second UNH coach honored by New England sportswriters and coaches this year. Former Wildcat coach, Joe Yukica of Boston College, was cited as "New England Football Coach of the Year" last fall.

"I feel that the Grand Rapids area presents an excellent opportunity for my particular family," explained

Cahill Takes Minnesota Post

Space Center Loses Director

by Ken Brown

Dr. Laurence J. Cahill, director of UNH's nationally famous Space Science Center, has resigned. He will accept a similar post with the University of Minnesota.

Rumors that Cahill's resignation resulted from dissatisfaction with the UNH space program are unfounded.

In a prepared statement, Cahill said, "There is no dissatisfaction, on my part, with the support of the UNH Space Science Center at the Department, College or University level."

Cahill said his decision to accept the Minnesota offer was based on the opportunity for "increased administrative responsibility" and "the challenge of contributing to the growth of a large multidisciplinary space research center."

Robert E. Houston, chairman of the Physics Department, indicated that UNH was not financially capable of providing an "integrated attack" which would deal with biological and mathematical problems of space science, as well as physics.

Robert N. Faiman, vice-president for research, said, "We hope that the facilities of the space science program would still be appealing."

Faiman added that "ultimately we hope to provide adequate facilities" such as a building for the Space Science Center, which the University has contemplated at various times.

Cahill added, "The Center is presently in a strong position and is the largest, best supported group of its kind at any University of comparable size."

Houston said that other faculty members in the space science program were "not even considering" transferring to Minnesota with Cahill, contrary to rumors that followed Cahill's resignation.

Cahill said, "Two or three individuals in the Center may transfer to Minnesota with me." But, he added later, "No faculty are involved."

The people who might accompany him to Minnesota would be "engineers or technicians", according to Cahill, and the decision to leave is "completely up to them."

At UNH, Cahill has received several research grants from federal and private agencies to study space science problems, notably work on satellites. Cahill estimated that he has been awarded about "$100,000" in contracts that will follow him to Minnesota, since

Rube Bjorkman

Bjorkman. "The job offers me a chance to create hockey players, or, at least work with them while they are developing, and I hope I can send some back here to New Hampshire."

UNH Director of Athletics, Andrew Mooradian, said yesterday that "New Hampshire is losing a fine person, as well as a great hockey coach, and we will always be indebted to Rube Bjorkman for the job he did with our hockey program. I enjoyed being around Rube, and hate to see him leave."

Bjorkman, 38, graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1952. He was a wing on the '48 and '52 Olympic teams, and captained the 1955 U.S. world team.

A native of Roseau, Minn., Bjorkman coached at Greenway High School, Coleraine, Minn., from 1955-63, before coming East to coach at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y.

He moved to UNH in 1964, and has compiled a record of 57 wins, 40 losses in four seasons with the Wildcats, including a 40-14 mark for the past two years, since New Hampshire moved into Division I of ECAC hockey league.

Senate Passes 4R Calendar

by Ed Brodeur

The University Senate adopted the 4R-4R calendar change by a three-fourths majority vote at a meeting Wednesday afternoon.

According to Arthur Grant, special assistant to President McConnell, the new plan is not really a calendar change.

"The 4R-4R plan calls for 13 weeks of instruction, two weeks of reading, and one six-day week of final exams. Final exams will still be given after Christmas vacation," Grant said.

At the Senate meeting, McConnell announced that the plan would not go into effect until September 1969. The reason for this is the problem of rescheduling classes.

"The rescheduling process will be tremendous," Grant said. Next semester's schedule has already been completed and the 1968-69 Catalogue has been printed. This, Grant said, was the cause of the delay.

Motions are now on the Senate floor pertaining to the course and credit aspect of the plan. One motion suggests that additional credits be added to the existing courses. This, for example, would give three credits to most two credit courses.

Other Senate members have suggested that some low credit courses be condensed into one quarter. This would make it possible to take two two-credit courses per semester.

Much of the opposition to the present calendar system arose mainly because of the two to three weeks of unproductive classes after Christmas vacation. "What we have done is to make this time into a reading period," Grant said. "Some people feel that it is unfortunate to shatter the sequence of learning by having four weeks without classes before finals, but almost everyone agrees that the reading period is better than having classes after Christmas," he said.

Student attitudes were taken into consideration before making the change. According to Grant, copies of the student opinion poll were sent to all University Senators and student opinions were voiced at Senate meetings.

Jeannette Roberts, co-chairman of The Student Senate Committee on Educational Policy, said a study would be made this weekend to determine what modifications students would like to see in the calendar change adopted by the University Senate. Ballots will be distributed to the housing units. Commuters may obtain them from the Student Senate Office.

Miss Roberts said that her committee would present the results of the survey to the University Senate task force before the Senate meeting Monday.

he is the "principal investigator" in them.

Dale L. Chinburg, associate director of the Space Science Center, said the resignation of Cahill is "a great loss", but he felt other faculty will continue to receive important research grants.

Faiman was not certain what Cahill's resignation would mean to the University in research dollars, but, he said, "I'm sure it will hurt."

"Dr. Cahill was a most valuable leader," Faiman said.

"We will feel his loss significantly," said Houston. "There aren't too many people of his caliber around."

Paper Conducts Draft Poll

Students and faculty will be given a chance to express their views on the Draft beginning today. THE NEW HAMPSHIRE will conduct an opinion poll on the Selective Service System in the Memorial Union Lobby.

The table will be open today and Monday through Thursday of next week from 8:45 a.m. - 2 p.m. and from 8-9:30 p.m. The results of the poll will be printed in a special edition of THE NEW HAMPSHIRE concerning the Draft on April 17.

Damp Fares Well after Avalanche Injuries

Jeff Damp, a junior Geology major from North Conway, who was injured last Sunday in an avalanche on Mt. Washington, is listed in satisfactory condition today.

Damp and two other UNH students were doing technical ice climbing Sunday afternoon when they were carried 500 feet down Huntington Ravine by an avalanche. Damp received a leg injury during the fall and spent Sunday night on the mountain in below zero weather waiting for rescue.

Dr. Charles Taylor, the family physician, says that Damp is doing very well. "Jeff still has blisters and swelling of both feet and legs. We expect he will be out of the hospital within ten days," the doctor said.

Damp may be up and walking before then, but it is unlikely that the swelling will be sufficiently reduced to allow him to leave the hospital before ten days.

Dr. Taylor went on to say that it is unlikely Damp will lose any movement in his feet or legs from the frost bite. He also said there have been no repercussions from the leg laceration Damp received.

The other two members of the party did not require hospitalization, although Donn Stahlman spent Monday night in Hood House. Stahlman was suffering from nervous tension and headaches, resulting from the incident. He was released Tuesday noon.

Clouds of smoke wafted into Stillings Dining Hall at breakfast yesterday, when a clothes dryer in the kitchen caught fire.

"This is the fourth time this year that the dryer caught fire," a female employee of Stillings said. "I think it's time they got a new one."

Firemen extinguished the blaze within half an hour, and no students had to leave the building, workers in Stillings said.
